Go Team, Go!

All over the country, football players (and fans!) are gearing up for another exciting season of punt, pass and kick! The history of the sport is varied and when first played, looked nothing like what we see today. Check out the list below for more interesting football facts.

- Our current football game actually has roots going back to England in the mid-19th century when it was known as "Rugby Football."
- The first American football game was played by Rutgers College (Rutgers University and the College of New Jersey (Princeton) in 1869 under "soccer-style" rules.
- The first game of intercollegiate football in America between two American colleges that most resembles today's version of the game was between Tufts University and Harvard on June 4, 1875.
- Walter Camp is known as the "Father of American Football" and is credited with transforming the sport from a rugby-style game into a truly unique sport. His articles in a variety of publications helped to popularize the game nationwide.
- The game of football became increasingly violent and in 1905 President Theodore Roosevelt threatened to ban the sport because of several player deaths from injuries suffered during games. At that time, the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) established set rules governing the sport.
